John Titus: Born October 28, 1763 Rehoboth, Mass. Died March 4, 1858. Buried South Moriah. Private Captain Holton's company, Major Ebenezer Allen's regiment, Connecticut and Vermont Line. Also served at the Battle of Chrysler Farm in Canada, War of 1812. John was a native of Rehoboth, and his father moved to Voluntown, Connecticut when he was an infant of a year old. He lived in Voluntown until the spring of 1775 when his father moved to Rockingham, Vermont. He fixed the date from the fact that on the way to Vermont the battle at Bunker Hill had taken place.

He resided with his father in Rockingham until the seventeenth year of age when he enlisted into the army of the Revolution under one Captain Safford and served for a period of about nine months. He served another nine months under a Captain Lovell.

After this service (probably the spring of 1782) he went to Voluntown, Connecticut to visit his grandfather Ebenezer Titus. He intended to remain there for a time and then go to sea, but by the advice of his friends he was induced to enlist into the army and did enlist for a period of one year in Captain Allen's Company. A small bounty was paid him to enlist for Plainfield. He was discharged soon after the news was received that peace was agreed upon.

After his service in the army he engaged in the service of one Nicholas Brown of Providence as a sailor, and went on a whaling voyage in South America on the ship or brig Rising Sun, a square rigged vessel. In the winter of 1785/6 he sailed to the West Indies.

On the 15th day of June 1786, he was married to Mehetable Fuller of Rehoboth by an Esquire Chase. John continued to follow the seas for a period of six or seven years, principally in the whaling service.

After his service as a sailor he and his family lived a few years in Voluntown, Connecticut. In 1800 he moved to Elizabethtown, New York, where his eldest child Sarah (called Sally) married Rowland Kellogg. On 1809 or 1810 they moved again, this time to Hinesburgh, Vermont. During all this time he worked as a shoemaker. The son of John's employer at Hinesburgh, and John's brother Alanson, both remembered him as being a spary and active man that might have been taken to be younger than he was. He took advantage of his youthfulness to enlist into the army once again to fight in the war of 1812. His son Francis (called Jack) enlisted at the same time.

John later claimed that he had told his true age (50) to the officer who enlisted him, but when he was wounded at Cressler's (OR Chrysler's) Farm, Canada in 1814 and subsequently discharged, he was described as being 40 years old. The description also tells us that he was 5 foot 7 inches tall with light hair and complexion and blue eyes. Because of his wound, John was able to obtain an invalid pension for his service in the War of 1812.

On June 7, 1832, Congress passed an act that enabled veterans of the Revolutionary War to draw pensions. John should have been able to draw this pension money, but was misinformed that he could not draw two pensions at one time. Because of this bad advice he did not receive pension for his Revolutionary service until June 7, 1854, exactly twenty-two years late. However there is some evidence that he received it retroactively from March 1831.

In a way, his misfortune was our good fortune, because if he had not had to prove his service in the Revolutionary War we probably would not have so many documents and so much information at our disposal.

John lived with his son Russell Lloyd Titus of Moriah, New York for the last twenty-five years of his life. Shortly before he died he said that he had voted in every presidential election, and that now he was ready for "Call of Roll", meaning thereby that his mission on earth was finished and that he was ready to leave this world. He answered the "Call of Roll" on March 4, 1858 and was buried in South Moriah Cemetery. His grave is maintained by our cousin Ethel Barnett who lives nearby.

You would think that after John's death Mehetable would have been free of government red tape, but such was not the case. At the age of ninety-two she found herself in the position of having to prove that she and John had indeed been married so that she could get a widow's pension. Some of her relatives testified on her behalf.

Her daughter Sally "deposed": That the said John Titus and Mehetable Titus lived and cohabited together as husband and wife from the earliest recollections of deposant up to the time of the death of John Titus as aforesaid. That the said John and Mehetable Titus raised a large family of children and were always received into society as husband and wife, and were reputed as such. And deposant never heard the fact of the said John and Mehetable Titus having been legally married in any manner questioned or doubted.

Her son also "deposed": I Russell L. Titus of Moriah, Essex County New York, aged fifty-eight years, depose and say that I am the son of John Titus, deceased, late of said town who died on the 4th day of March last. That my said father resided with me for about twenty-five years previous to his death. That he was a Revolutionary Pensioner of this United States at the rate of about seventy dollars per annum, and also an invalid pensioner of the United States for a wound received in the War of 1812. I further depose that my mother, Mehetable Titus survives my father and is the widow of said John Titus. That my parents lived together ever since my first recollections, and the fact of their having been legally married never came into question. She now resides with me, and as I believe of her age to be ninety-two years. I have no knowledge of any public or private record of the marriage of my parents except one made by directions of my parents among my own records. And further say not, Russell L. Titus. (Russell was blind and signed with a mark.)

News of Mehetable's plight must have gotten around because one of John's cousins that lived nine counties away gave a deposition to support her claims. This cousin, Sylvanus, and his brother Nathaniel, were sons of Comfort who had a farm adjoining that of his father Ebenezer.

I Sylvanus Titus of Tonawanda, Erie County, state of New York, aged eighty-two years, depose and say I am a native of Voluntown, Windham County, Connecticut where I resided until A.D. 1835 when I removed the neighborhood where I now reside.

I further depose that I had a brother named Nathaniel Titus and a cousin named John Titus who enlisted into the Revolutionary War under Captain Allen for a period of one year and near the close of the war, as I well remember that before the close of their enlistment peace had been declared, and I have a distinct recollection of the time of their enlistment from a circumstance that their bounty money was paid in silver which both my brother and cousin were fond of showing. Said John Titus, at the time he enlisted lived with his grandfather Ebenezer Titus, whose farm adjoined my father's, and his residence was very near my own.

I further depose that the service was rendered at Horse Neck, and that at one time my cousin, said John, returned from the army on furlough, and was sick, and that my mother went to the doctor for advice, and obtained a certificate of his disability which was sent to his commanding officer, and that after he recovered he returned to the army at Horse Neck, and that both my brother and said John were discharged at the close of the year, and returned to Voluntown.

I have been acquainted with said John Titus from the time alluded to 'til the present, and he now resides in Moriah in this state. Said John was also in the War of 1812, and wounded, after receiving this wound was at my house in Connecticut, and was pensioned as an invalid as I was told, and believe. I knew Captain Allen, and was present when my brother and cousin joined his company. And further say not.
